Budget Reviewed by Glendale Council

By Mary O'KEEFE

The California Dept. of Parks and Recreation and the Office of Grants and Local Services (OGALS) had awarded grants specifically for the restoration of Stengel Field in Glendale in the amount of $2 million, and for the Mountain Oaks Open Space Acquisition in the amount of $2.5 million. On Dec. 19 the items were in the consent calendar and approved by the Glendale City Council.

The grants for Stengel will "provide critical improvements to a field that has served Glendale families and youth for decades," according to the City of Glendale.

Glendale City owns and operates Stengel Field, which has been under remodeling/ reconstruction for vears. Another grant for $2 million is also earmarked for Stengel that will be put toward the project. The total for the restoration project is $7.3 million.

The City Council then turned to the Annual Financial Report.

The City of Glendale received an "unmodified opinion" which, according to Jason Bradford, director of Finance, is the highest rating it can receive from its external auditors.

The auditors found that the City's checks and balances that are in place are sufficient.

This external audit is required for the City.

Glendale does have a reserve of 25%, which is similar to the cities of Burbank and Inglewood. Pasadena has a reserve of 20%

Tournament of Roses Float Gets Finishing Touches

By Eliza PARTIKA

As the big day approaches, volunteers are working feverishly to get the La Cañada entry parade-ready.

he La Cañada Flintridge Tournament of Roses Association and over 500 local volunteers are putting the finishing touches on this year's float, a reimagining of "Flower Power" in line with this year's parade theme, "Celebrating World Music."

The float, a giant replica of a '60s Volkswagen bus, will feature a band of flowers - a sunflower, snapdragon and daisy - playing 1960s classics like "California Dreamin" by the Mamas and Papas, "San Francisco" by Scott McKenzie and "Drive Your Car" by the Beatles. The 32-minute-to-one-hour set is a first for the parade, which normally allows only 30-second loops.

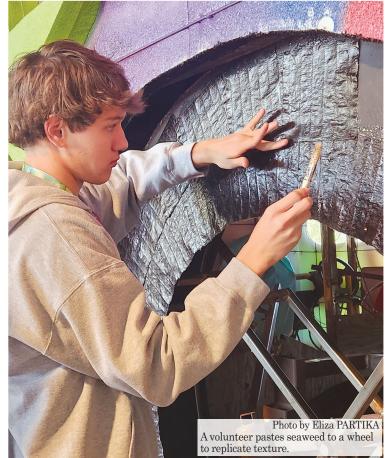

The "Flower Power" bus will feature many ambitious firsts for the Association, including its recyclability. The foam board materials, steel and wood used to build the bus will all be taken down and reused in other floats or as additions to trailers and other essentials. It's also the biggest of the floats they've captained with enough space for three operators and beds in the top of the cabin for those who will watch the float the night before the parade.

President Ernest Koeppen said he is always trying to think outside the box - and even push it over – when he is coming up with ideas for floats.

"It becomes a collaborative effort," Koeppen said of the creative process. He said the committee fell into the idea for the '60s as they brainstormed.

"Music and flowers were the cemented ideas. Then we wondered, What if the flowers were playing like Mick Jagger with big lips,' and suddenly that locked us into the '60s because the big lips on the see FLOATS on page 18

Arrests Made for Grand Theft, Resisting Arrests and Burglary

The Glendale Police Dept. (GPD) by the Glendale Police Dept. has been busy these last few weeks. On Dec. 18 at about 3:30 p.m. officers with the Downtown Policing Unit spotted two men with several sunglasses walking out of the door of Bloomingdale's at the Glendale Galleria. The suspects left the store without attempting to pay for the items. The officers contacted the suspects, who then ran. Officers were able to catch up with them and arrested the suspects for grand theft and resisting arrest.

On Dec. 19 in the afternoon, GPD detectives and members of the newly formed Glendale Police Residential Burglary Taskforce intercepted the three suspects in Los Angeles. Two of the suspects attempted to flee on foot but were subsequently apprehended.

This operation represents a significant milestone in an ongoing, diligently pursued investigation initiated by burglary detectives over a month ago. CVW interviewed GPD The high-end sunglasses had an Chief Manny Cid about this new task force (the story was published on Dec. 21).

Reviewing and Preparing

us to reflect on the past year while preparing Light and Holiday Display Tour. Folks for the new one.

Looking back I'm pretty pleased with the accomplishments of the CV Weekly. We have a dynamic sales team that has brought new business to the newspaper. I'm proud that these advertisers recognize the value of advertising their business and/or service within the pages of the CV Weekly.

In 2023, I was recognized by State Senator Anthony Portantino with a Women in Business Award. That I was nominated by women who felt I deserved the recognition meant so much to me and I'm forever grateful.

During 2023 I learned a lot from our proofreader Anne McNeill. Initially I learned about verb/noun agreement but throughout the years I've learned much more. It gives me great pride when I send a piece to her that I've already looked over and she returns it with no changes - mission accomplished!

Also in 2023 historian Mike Lawler introduced our readers (including me) to many different aspects of our area, from local rescues to our founding fathers. His column in Viewpoints is one of the most popular in the paper.

In 2023 we gained several talented writers including Mikaela Stone and Eliza Partika. These women not only have a nose for news but also enjoy sharing their stories with our readers-a key component to a successful community newspaper.

We had a robust turnout for our Fun &

This is the time of the year that invites Frights in the Foothills and Merry & Bright made a point to tell us how happy they were that we continued these tours that were created during COVID. We were also happy for sponsors ready to support these events.

Looking ahead I'm happy to report that The Finest will return to the pages of the CV Weekly. The Finest is the chance for our readers to cast their votes for businesses and services they feel are the finest in the area. Whether a bakery, auto dealer or chiropractor (and more) The Finest points readers in the direction to get the very best in services and businesses. You'll find the ballot in the CV Weekly beginning in January and also online; make your selections and get them to us so we can tabulate. We'll be announcing the winners in the summer.

One goal I have for the CV Weekly is to increase our home deliveries in 2024. Imagine waking up every Thursday morning to find the community's favorite newspaper in your driveway! Kudos to those who have already signed up for home delivery; let's get some more in 2024!

Finally, thank you to everyone who has made the CV Weekly a relevant and reliable resource for news. We work hard every week to meet those expectations and are grateful for those who appreciate that hard work.

Taking A Look Outside Our Window

By Mary O'KEEFE

It is the end of the year. This year was the hottest year on record with January through November being 2.62 degrees Fahrenheit warmer than average since the preindustrial days.

I have often cited many examples of what science fiction has shown us about "what if." When a lot of these books and films were created they appeared to reflect a distant future but, as I have said before, these science fiction writers in many ways are societies' oracles. And like the oracles of the past they have been sought after by some and burned at the stake by others ... it really all depended on personal carbon footprint. It can be as easy the message people want to hear.

This column has allowed me to really look at weather and how climate change is affecting us on a daily basis. To be honest, I feel that scientists who specialize in this area really let us down. Years ago I attended a seminar at Caltech on climate change. Scientists on the panel spoke about their concerns for the future. They spoke with certainty of the increasing amount of carbon it is simply an extension of what began in the dioxide and what a warmer climate would mean to the Earth. There were a lot of scary scientists were preaching to the choir. Most climate change and that it was a threat; it was Monday morning with a 20% chance of rain.

reaching those few who still did not believe in the science surrounding climate change.

During this seminar one of the panelists said he felt that scientists needed to be more aggressive (my word not his) in their concerns, and I agreed - both then and now. Scientists in this area seemed to say, "Well, we warned you." That is often the case in science fiction as well. In the end, the scientists say, 'We told you so' over and over but that doesn't change the ending.

The issues of climate change are at our door. We can see these issues all around us if we just look up from our own lives. And each of us can do something to reduce our as not throwing our garbage on the ground or walking through nature instead of driving through it.

So I leave 2023 with this quote from Rod Serling and the hope that we will learn in 2024 to do more to help our planet: "You walk into this room at your own risk because it leads to the future – not a future that will be but one that might be. This is not a new world, old one ...."

According to NOAA, the cooling trend scenarios discussed with a lot of scientific locally continues with temperatures from evidence put forth. To be honest, though, the mid-to-high 60s. Rain is more definitive; 80%, on Saturday with totals of ½ to ¾ inches. in the 2017 audience understood the basics of A weaker system will be going through on

A volatile Glendale Unified School District (GUSD) meeting took place at the school board's regular meeting. Responding to recent GUSD board meetings that had become contentious, the Glendale Police Dept. (GPD) provided staff with some safety suggestions. The parking lot was cleared of all cars and blockades were placed at its entrances and exits. There was a large police presence and, as a safety measure, most of the GUSD staff left earlier in the afternoon to work from home. GPD officers attempted to deescalate the situation and three individuals were arrested on various charges including unlawful use of pepper spray and willfully obstructing officers in the course of their duties.

The 10th anniversary of the running and cycling racing event "Finish the Ride" took place.

The third annual Sunland-Tujunga Pride event was held at Sunland Park. The event was founded by a 15-yearold Verdugo Woodlands High School student. She felt the school wasn't welcoming to the LGBTQ+ community and wanted to create a safe event for her fellow students, and the community, to take part.

The Glendale City Council meeting turned contentious once public comment began, mirroring contention found at recent Glendale Unified School District (GUSD) meetings.

Councilmember Elen Asatryan and Mayor Dan Brotman spoke about recent acts of hate in addition to the GUSD demonstration that had turned violent at the previous week's school board meeting. These included the recent anti-Semitic flyers that had been distributed throughout the City, assaults on LGBTQ+ community members as well as vandalism of a vehicle that displayed an Armenian flag.

Crescenta Valley Water District hosted a public hearing regarding a proposed capital charge on the property tax roll. Disgruntled people arrived in droves, with attendees spilling out in two different directions toward the street.

Two men were arrested in connection with a carjacking of a pizza delivery driver.

Burbank Police responded to the 1500 block of North Naomi Street regarding a report of a carjacking that had just occurred.

Glendale City Council meeting was contentious and, at one point, Mayor Dan Brotman called for a "time out" to calm the situation. When the meeting resumed, due to ongoing interruptions by several audience members, City Attorney Michael Garcia suggested the mayor had been patient and advised it was time to think about clearing the chamber. The mayor gave the audience one more chance to act respectfully; however, the audience did not respond and the chamber was cleared.

Speakers during the public communication portion of the meeting focused primarily on Glendale Unified School District issues.

The Tuesday night Glendale Unified School District board meeting was once again the scene of chaos, anger and concern. Parents shared their opinions; some praised the district for its inclusivity of all students while others chastised the board for its LGBTQ+ policies, although there was nothing on the agenda concerning that issue.

 $At the end of the meeting {\it Superintendent Vivian Ekchian} announced her retirement from the District.$

The Historical Society of Crescenta Valley (HSCV) held an informational tour of the recently renovated Montrose Bowl. HSCV is an organization that strives to keep history alive and historical places intact. Its members have been watching this famous Montrose landmark for a while and were very excited about its upcoming grand opening.

The Montrose Shopping Park was packed as nearly 15,000 people turned out for the 21st annual Montrose Car Show. Over 300 vehicles registered for the event, filling the 2200-2400 blocks of Honolulu Avenue. Though most of the cars were classics, there were a few newer models on display as well as motorcycles.

An awards ceremony was held, recognizing autos in a variety of categories. Among the winners was Ted Saraf who entered the car show with his 1968 Dodge police car, which displayed Pasadena police decals on the doors. It was also fitted with the old lights and sirens.

Administrators at Crescenta Valley High School (CVHS) confirmed that the track and field would be closed as construction began on new stadium seating.

"It will be closed to the public," confirmed CVHS Principal Christine Benitez.

The construction is scheduled to take nine months to complete so hopefully the area will reopen before graduation in 2024. For most of the school year the school should be able to hold regular sport and physical education programs when school representatives are present.

The construction base of operations will be the coaches' parking lot, which is the most southern parking lot on Ramsdell Avenue south of the gym.

Members of the Screen Actors Guild – American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (SAG-AFTRA) went on strike after talks with the studios stalled. The strike continued for several months.

Members of the Montrose Search and Rescue (MSAR) team accessed iPhone technology to find the victim of a car that careened over the side of the highway.

Newer iPhone cellphones signal when a vehicle is involved in a crash. In areas that may not have cell service available, like most of the Angeles National Forest, the phone's program would notify an emergency operator via satellite phone technology. That is what happened in this case.

After MSAR members found the victim he was transported to a local trauma unit.

Then-Glendale Fire Chief Tim Ernst oversaw the chomping goats with only several yards of a low voltage electrified fence to keep the goats in and curious onlookers out. The fences also protected the goats from predators, like coyotes, that roam the hillsides.

Once a year the Glendale Fire Dept. brings in the goats to clear the land in fire prone areas and an Australian shepherd dog does the goat herding.

Neighborhood residents gathered to meet their local law enforcement and safety personnel as part of National Night Out (NNO). The Crescenta Valley Sheriff's Station/Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dept. took part in the annual event hosting several information booths and handing out more than 500 free hot dogs. The station had representatives from public safety including LASD, California Highway Patrol, U.S. Forest Service with Smokey Bear and LA County Fire Dept. Montrose Search and Rescue team members were on hand to talk to people and answer questions.

The Glendale Kiwanis Club joined Home Again LA (HALA) for its annual Back to School Shopping Spree. HALA connected 25 volunteers from the Glendale Kiwanis Club with 25 children from their housing program. Through funding provided by HALA each child was given a $100 gift card to purchase school supplies at Target for the upcoming school year.

As students prepared to return to school, drivers were put on alert as more law enforcement was present to control safety and prevent accidents. Officers were looking for anything that puts pedestrians/students in undo harm.

Fire and law enforcement agencies and a crew from Crescenta Valley Water District responded to a water main break in the 3000 block of Montrose Avenue west of Ramsdell Avenue. The water came up through the street buckling it. Thepipewas apparently installed in 1961, according to James Lee, CVWD interim general manager. Sheriff deputies were blocking vehicular traffic along Montrose Avenue though north/south traffic on Ramsdell and Pennsylvania avenues was not affected.

CVWD reported that the damage was caused due to a lateral split along the pipeline main. According to Lee, the repair plan included replacing about a 10 ft. section of the main.

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dept. (LASD) – Bomb Squad was requested to assess the scene and the item. Using witness accounts and security footage, a suspect was identified. Glendale police officers successfully located and arrested 22-year-old Timothy Taratchila of Burbank for making a false bomb threat.

September 2023

The Superior Court of Los Angeles County approved a new set of bail schedules for suspects arrested in non-violent felonies and misdemeanor crimes. The new bail schedule, slated to take effect in LA County on Oct. 1, dictated one of three possible actions by law enforcement for an arrestee's release: Cite and Release (CR), Book and Release (BR) or Magistrate Review (MR). Capital offenses, such as murder with special circumstances and limited felonies, are not eligible for pre-arraignment, zero bail release.

The Sheriff's Dept. and all police departments in the County must comply with this protocol.

The neighbors in the 3000 block of Frances Avenue voiced their concerns regarding a new neighborhood business.

U Matter Luxury Resort purchased a home on a large parcel in the area and has created an oasis for "detox."

The resort is designed as an "intense detox program" that proposes to offer detoxification for a number of issues ranging from food allergies to over-indulgence with alcohol and drugs. However, Prescilla Cardenas, spokesperson for U Matter Luxury Resort, stressed the property is not a rehabilitation center for those who wish to go through a program that involves medical withdrawals.

The 10th Annual Patriot Day Motorcade made its way through the Crescenta Valley and La Cañada Flintridge on Sept. 11.

"Remember Honor Respect" was the focus of the motorcade – regarding the victims of the 9/11 terrorist attacks. These included not only those who died on that day – Sept. 11, 2001 – but those who were at ground zero, including the emergency responders who came from all over the country days and months afterward to help. It was also a chance to honor and respect all emergency responders and military.

Among those who came out to watch the motorcade were firefighters and hundreds of school students waving flags and yelling "Thank you" to the emergency responders.

The motorcade ended with a barbecue honoring Jean Maluccio, co-founder of the event, at Twelve Oaks Assisted Living in La Crescenta.

CV Water District board member Judy Tejeda announced her resignation from the CVWD board, effective Dec. 31, after serving more than 30 years.

For her years of service, the District dedicated a reservoir site in her name.

Montrose Oktoberfest, one of the biggest events and fundraisers held in Montrose, hosted thousands of celebrants who flooded Honolulu Avenue to enjoy live music, food, beverage, games, rides and more.

Longtime Crescenta Valley resident Don Norbut was honored with the World War II Registry of Remembrance. Norbut served in the U.S. Navy beginning in 1944. American Legion Post 288 member Dick Clubb created the plaque and registered Norbut.

The Glendale Unified Board of Education unanimously approved a contract to affirm Dr. Darneika Watson as the next Glendale Unified School District superintendent of schools. Dr. Watson served as the district's interim superintendent after the previous superintendent, Dr. Vivian Ekchian, retired at the end of June.

CVW was invited to an active shooter training involving Glendale fire and police departments.

Officer Andres Rico, a member of GPD's Training Bureau, and Battalion Chief Todd Tucker, Emergency Medical Services Bureau, led the officers in the training.

Local Halloween events kept residents on their toes as ghosts and goblins converged on the Valley. Events included the annual Spooktacular hosted by the Montrose Shopping Park, "Mystery of the Verdugo Mines" held by the Dads' Club in Glendale, various "trunk-or-treat" events and the Haunted Hotel at 413 Whiting Woods.

The American Heroes Airshow celebrated its 30th year at its event held at Hansen Dam Sports Complex. Over 75 information booths were on-site ranging from vector control to law enforcement to fire departments to probation departments and more. A highlight of the day was the naturalization ceremony where about 50 people were administered the Oath of Allegiance becoming the newest U.S. citizens.

A special community meeting was held focusing on the business UMatter Luxury Resort, which has been permitted as an adult residential facility in the 3000 block of Frances Avenue in La Crescenta. Members of several Los Angeles County departments were present to answer questions from the standing-room-only crowd. This was the first meeting that hosted the owners and representatives of U Matter Luxury Resort.

The Crescenta Valley Town Council election was held.

Hurricane Hilary was downgraded to a tropical storm by the time it reached California. During its stay it dropped a lot of rain from the mountains to the valleys.

The brunt of the storm was felt in low desert areas like Palm Springs, Cathedral City and Coachella Valley.

A project was filed with Los Angeles County Regional Planning where the La Crescenta Motel is located at the northwest corner of Foothill Boulevard and Briggs Avenue.

The plan is for a new five-story, 81-unit multifamily development, including six units restricted to extremely low-income households. The plan includes 96 parking spaces provided in a surface lot. The applicant will utilize a 53% density bonus, as well as waivers for height, reduced rear yard landscaping, reduced parking and reduced ground floor transparency, according to the Dept. of Regional Planning.

It was a bevy of pancake breakfasts in October. Crescenta Valley Town Council members donned their aprons and grabbed their pancake spatulas as they hosted their traditional pancake breakfast. Unlike previous years, it was held in Sadler Hall at the historic "rock church" – St. Luke's of the Mountains Episcopal Church.

Rosemont Middle School then hosted its annual Pancake Breakfast and Concert. The funds raised were dedicated to the music program students to pay for instruments, music and supplies. Half of every ticket sold by students went toward their end-of-year trip to perform at Disneyland.

Incumbents Kerri Lewin Brautigam, Chris Kilpatrick and Jeffrey Rodriguez were elected to regular positions. Daniel Kim secured a place as an alternate.

Members of the American Legion Post 288 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1614 held their annual Veterans Day commemoration at Two Strike Park.

An estimated 60 people, including veterans, members of the CV Sheriff's Station, Glendale Police Dept. and several Boy Scout organizations, were on-site.

Highlights of the day included the singing of the national anthem by The Carothers Family Singers and the playing of "The Armed Forces Medley." Commander Robert Wollenweber recited the poignant war poem "In Flanders Field."

The day before the ceremony, the Don Jose Verdugo Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution (DAR) placed a wreath at the Montrose Vietnam Memorial in recognition of Veterans Day.

There were additional requests that include: Management Services requested $75,000 for replacement and purchase of equipment for the city's TV channel GTV6; Glendale Water and Power (GWP) requested one clean energy officer position (the costs will be absorbed within GWP's fiscal budget for 2023-24); and the Glendale Police Dept. (GPD) requested funding for six new police services officer positions.

GPD Chief Manny Cid said these would be administrative duties including parking enforcement, writing reports and responding to traffic collisions without injuries. If accepted these programs could be a source of recruitment for the police department.

Bradford proposed some actions that could increase revenue including a business tax, occupancy tax increase, parcel tax, property transfer tax and a parking tax.

These taxes would have to be voted on: a general tax that would require revenues generated to be used for any legitimate government purpose and a special tax would require funds that are restricted and can only be used for certain purposes.

Another proposed tax includes a so-called

In response to the surge in regional residential burglaries, the GPD proactively established the Residential Burglary Taskforce. The task force is composed of GPD patrol and motor officers, Special Enforcement Detail, detectives and undercover officers. Utilizing cutting-edge technology and saturation patrols, the task force achieved a quick turnaround, reducing incidents from double digits per week to zero residential burglaries in Glendale over the past week.

Despite the recent arrests, the enhanced patrols will continue to ensure community safety.

 City staff will now begin to research the proposed taxes and other ideas to bring in revenue and bring back the issues one at a time. It was noted that a parcel tax would have to be put before voters and must receive a two-thirds vote; a business tax would require a majority (50% plus one) vote.

enthusiasts gathered, eager to explore the offerings of the 35 "pour stations" set up by the participating businesses in the Shopping Park. Each station presented a selection of red or white wines, each chosen by the business owner to showcase their own tastes and favorite wines. Many of the stations were complemented by small bites, ranging from charcuterie spreads to samples from some of the local restaurants, and even scoops of ice cream at Moo Moo Mia.

Glendale Unified School District board of education members recognized high achieving schools for their academic and student support successes at the board meeting. The board also recognized Holocaust survivor Joseph Alexander.

Plaid Friday and the lighting of the Montrose Christmas tree brought hundreds of people to the Montrose Shopping Park. Hummingbird Conservatory Carolers sang for the crowd and the Glendale Fire Dept. was on hand with their "Cram-A Classic Toy Drive" gathering toys for those in need this holiday season. State Senator Anthony Portantino was joined by Glendale City councilmembers Ara Najarian and Paula Devine and Mayor Dan Brotman. Crescenta Valley Sheriff's Station deputies responded to the 800 block of Berkshire Avenue in La Cañada regarding a trespassing call. Deputies arrived and during an investigation the property owner saw the suspects and pointed them out. The two suspects were detained without incident. They were arrested for burglary, driving a vehicle without owner's consent and possession of burglary tools. They were booked at the CV Station and held in lieu of $50.000 bail.

The Montrose Christmas Parade featured cheering crowds and over 1,400 people marching down the Honolulu Avenue representing local officials, organizations, businesses and schools.

There were 100 entries total in the parade this year and the parade watchers were there to support them.

The conservative estimate is anywhere from 18,000 to 20,000 people were in attendance to support the parade along the route.

Hugs Guaranteed When Nurses Give 35 Plush Bears To Patients

By Ruth SOWBY

USC Keck-VHH nurses teamed up with donors from Bloomingdale's Glendale, the hospital Foundation, and the community to make magic happen in the form of little stuffed bears.

For the second year, Project Hug-a-Bear is about "brightening patients' holidays at a time when they are not able to be home with family and friends," said donor Vic Pallos.

The project was launched on Dec. 21 when the hospital's fourth floor lobby filled with dozens of nurses, Foundation board members, hospital administrators, donors (including two Bloomingdale's staff members) and 35 stuffed bears. During the days that followed, the nurses made their bear deliveries. If previous years were any indication, Teddy bears aren't just for kids; they can bring comfort to adults as well. Robert Burnett, Bloomingdale's Customer Experience leader, visited patients last Christmas season and saw them, young and old, "light up" when they received their new bear. Burnett was joined this year by Morgan Lobell, also from Bloomingdale's Glendale.

Chloe Ross, Foundation board member and second-year project donor, said, "Patients cried when they received their bear ... but they were tears of joy." Photos by Ruth SOWBY

TRAVEL & LEISURE New Twist in Old Favorite: Nocturne Theatre Presents 'Madame Scrooge'

By Mikaela STONE

lendale has waited for Center Theatre's fate since its closure during the pandemic. Overall the hope has been that someone would purchase the beloved site then build on its rich history rather than demolish the site.

That someone is Meyer2Meyer Entertainment, headed by the husband and wife team of Melissa and Justin Meyer. Though they have renamed the Glendale Center Theatre the Nocturne Theatre, they continue to uplift the Theatre's past of 55 years of "A Christmas Carol" with a twist. Throughout December, the Nocturne Theatre is hosting showings of its own version of "A Christmas Carol" called "Madame Scrooge."

The genderbent take on an old classic stars the powerhouse Stephanie Hodgdon as Evelyn Scrooge alongside a theater company that sings a repertoire of original songs with lyrics by Justin Meyer and a score written by Chris Thomas. That "Madame Scrooge" is happening in the former Glendale Center Theatre is serendipitous; the Meyers had already planned to perform an adaptation of "A Christmas Carol" before they went on the hunt for a place that fit their niche as both a sit-down theater and a proper space for the interactive theater for which their company is known. After two years of searching, the couple selected the Glendale Center Theater; it was only after the purchase they learned that they were taking up a mantle the locals missed dearly. During production, passersby would peek through the doors and ask whether they were finally open and if musicals were occurring again -two questions that can be answered with a resounding "Yes!"

Well known for esoteric events such as its Haunted Soiree, the gender of the Meyers' "Madame Scrooge" differs from a typical production of "A Christmas Carol." Meyer2Meyer news on the Glendale lives up to the darkness implied in the Nocturne Theatre's name by adding, well, ghostliness to the ghosts of Christmases Past, Present, and Yet to Come as well as to the character of Marley. For example, in the classic scene when Scrooge's door knocker turns into the face of his former partner Jacob Marley, in this version Evelyn Scrooge finds not only Marley's face but his whole upper body reaching through her door with a terrible creaking of wood. Soon after, Marley arrives in Scrooge's bedroom accompanied by an entire dance crew of skeletons performing a rattling number with chain props while they glow under blacklights.

> As Marley, actor Brayden Hades's attention-grabbing presence to the sound of cheery brass as he warns Scrooge of her possible fate is reminiscent of Robin Williams' performance in Aladdin's "Never Had a Friend Like Me." However, the song that received the largest round of applause from the audience was "Life Isn't Fair," a bitter song that Scrooge sings to the charity solicitors in growling altos and swooping belts, asserting a new take on Scrooge's cruel personality - she believes there is no such thing as right choices because life cannot truly be stopped. It is her belief that misery lasts a lifetime "and then you decompose." Delivered with its terse beat, audience members may not agree with Scrooge's morals but are quite likely to wish the Nocturne Theatre would release a cast album so that they might hear her treatise again.

Justin Meyer wrote the song with Hodgdon's voice in mind; Hodgdon's credits include the ongoing onewoman show "She Will Rock You" where she performs songs penned by rock and roll greats such as Stevie that she does have the ability Nix and Freddie Mercury.

Without a strong Scrooge, any adaptation of "A Christmas Carol" is not the only creative choice that crumbles, but "Madame Scrooge" holds steady. Even more astounding, because "She Will Rock You" takes so much of Hodgdon's time, there was originally concern about her availability regarding this role. However, once Hodgdon looked into her calendar, she realized that she did have a short span where she was not working – a time that perfectly landed during the production of "Madame Scrooge." This, paired with the fortuitous purchase of the theater, really does seem like a real life Christmas miracle.

> Unfortunately, the adaptation does fall into one tired trope - part of Scrooge's tragic backstory is that she cannot conceive children. Female characters driven to villainy due to infertility or a hysterectomy have appeared in media from Hitchcock to Marvel, running all the way back to Shakespeare's Lady Macbeth. However, both the writers and actors were aware of a need for nuance in Madame Scrooge's story. While the story is in many ways not constrained by any particular time period in spite of its historical fiction trappings, actress Hodgdon elaborated on the writing choice by explaining that "becoming a mother and becoming a wife were of the utmost importance at the time and since she couldn't do that ... she learned to assert herself in other ways." Hodgdon also noted that she didn't want Madame Scrooge's arc to be about her character going from the feminine to masculine -Scrooge's reformation is not about changing who she is as a person, but rather showing her that she does not need the armor she has put up to protect herself. The "kernel of who she is," as Hodgdon puts it, remains intact. She has buried the part of herself that knows how to have fun and appreciate life.

In the final scene, as she accepts and responsibility to affect others' lives, she is not only learning to be charitable but also to have fun as the audience saw her do as a young woman. This, combined with the fact that infertility is not the only motivating factor in Evenlyn Scrooge's bitterness, allows her to remain a character rather than a caricature. The most notable heartbreak in her life is the death of her older sister and primary caretaker who sacrificed her own health and safety for the money to take care of her little sister. Seeing her sister's struggles is part of what inspires Scrooge to become a miser; the Meyers noted they did not want Scrooge's only personality trait to be her greed.

As enjoyable as the music and acting is, the crown jewel of "Madame Scrooge" is the costuming. Melissa Meyer acknowledged, "We didn't want it to just be grays and blacks and blues, we wanted to add our own twist." It is the costumes that elevate the show from being an interesting perspective on a classic to a spooky masterpiece that can stand strong beside Meyer2Meyer's soirees. The ensemble sports half masks that distort their eyes and nose, making them look like faerie tale creatures. However, it is the supernatural where the delightful costuming shines the brightest with the Ghost of Christmas Past dressed in an outfit resembling an ornament as she quite literally spins through Scrooge's former life, the Ghost of Christmas Present sporting a pair of curling horns above a mask reminiscent of celtic winter solstice art, and the Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come brandishing six arms tipped in long, brittle fingers peeking out from its robe. The ghostly ensemble dancing with Marley features very different costumes for each skeleton with some dressed in lacy white clothing from various periods to others whose bones are incorporated into their costume. One dapper ghost danced with a rib cage over his waistcoat. Most frightening of all were the masks donned by the devils Scrooge encounters when she visits hell in her own future, singing "A Fate Worse than Death" – an effect achieved both simply and artistically through swirling red lighting. Almost alien in nature, the masks sported rounded nubs of horns and hollow eye sockets as their wearers wrapped a belting Evelyn Scrooge in chains. This, paired with their shambling movements, were enough to push the audience's reaction into the uncanny valley, preparing them for an all the more joyous contrast in the following scene when Scrooge awakens alive, well and changed forever.

Overall, Justin Meyer's writing contains all of the beloved elements of an old classic with the addition of several clever moments that will make audiences of all ages laugh. While the show is great for families, it is important to know how one's child will react to potentially frightening masks if they are particularly young. The show does contain smoke effects, strobe lights and loud noises. "Madame Scrooge" is expected to return Christmas of next year.

The Nocturne Theatre's upcoming shows to watch out for are the "Phantom of the Opera," "Beauty and the Beast," "Into the Woods" and "Cabaret" but that is not all the Meyers have up their sleeve. The couple has converted the upper office spaces of the former Glendale Center Theatre into interactive theater spaces, such as its children's program "Reindeer Games," where children can attend Santa's workshop and visit holiday favorites such as Rudolph and Jack Frost. For adults, the new La Brache lounge overlooks the street outside where the Meyers hope to host events to come. Should one hope to ring in the new year by celebrating Glendale's beloved theater's return, the Nocturne Theatre is throwing a Midnight Masquerade on New Year's Eve.

THEN: In 1934 Shopping Bag Food Stores opened its first suburban grocery store in Montrose on Honolulu Avenue, just east of Ocean View Boulevard. All of its outlets had previously been in urban areas. Inside the store was a Van de Kamp's Bakery and Cable Electric, an appliance store. Note the wide-open front, the style for grocery stores of that era. Note, too, the Shopping Bag sign painted on the side of the building on the left side of the photo. When the building for JC Penney was built in the vacant lot next door, it was built right against that wall and that painted sign, along with the posted ads below it, is probably still there!

NOW: A few years later, Shopping Bag built an even bigger store less than a half a block to the east on Honolulu. This left the old store to be partitioned and occupied by a succession of smaller stores and restaurants, including Whelan Drugs, the first location of Tom's Toys, Bob's Valley Book Store and the Hick'ry Holler Restaurant. In the '90s, the building was refaced with a stone façade, and looks quite modern now.

WEEKLY HOROSCOPES Provided by horoscope.com

ARIES March 21 - April 19

This could be a more stressful period than you've experienced in a while. The cosmos indicates that you could be under a lot of mental pressure, which could cause you to burn out. The aspects may intensify whatever emotions you're feeling. Relax, get a massage, lighten up your schedule, and enjoy a nice bath to help you sleep better.

TAURUS April 20 - May 20

Financial issues could bring some stress your way. That coupled with the current aspects could mean that you use up more of your energy reserves than usual. Thankfully, you have the stamina to face any challenge and handle any crisis. Whether you have to confront major or minor problems, you have what it takes to get through.

★★ GEMINI May 21 - June 20

You need to be especially careful where vour health is concerned. If you discover unusual symptoms, get them checked right away. Alternatively, your partner could become ill. Put your mind at ease by making sure he or she sees a health professional as quickly as possible. The biggest problem could be stress. If you can manage that, you'll feel much better.

CANCER June 21 - July 22

Health issues may come to the fore now. This may not be the first time you've had to deal with this particular health problem. This is your chance to get it sorted out for the last time. Find out whether it's the result of a lifestyle issue or bad habit and take action.

CALEO July 23 - August 22

This could be one of those tricky periods when you need to tread carefully. The current aspects could cause nervous tension, especially if you're already worried about something. It won't help to push yourself if you're tired. Take sensible steps to cut back your schedule, relax, and perhaps work out gently.

KIRGO August 23 - Sept. 22

This isn't one of your more relaxed times. It could be filled with inopportune challenges or issues. The cosmos can skew your perspective, too. As far as your health is concerned, pace yourself. Keep up your workouts, but don't overdo it, especially if you feel too tired. Take it easy and you'll be back in the groove in no time.

ANSWERS for last week's issue.

XX LIBRA Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 Locate the potential trouble spots and you'll feel better then ever. Do you drink too much coffee or reach for pastries or candy bars when you're hungry? It all adds up and can increase your calorie and fat intake by a significant amount even when you think you're being careful. Make sure to get plenty of healthy oils rather than the unhealthy fats. This can also make a big difference to the way you feel. Check for food intolerances, too.

December 25, 2023 - December 31, 2023

Correction Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

Any health issues that may have been problems seem to be easing off now, but that doesn't mean you can let down your guard. Just because you don't notice a symptom doesn't mean you can go back to doing things the old way. You might need to make some changes. Aspects now could indicate back problems. Find out where you're unsupported in life and that could be the cause.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

Feeling your feisty freedom and engaging your will are necessary for you. You know you can't afford to give up now. It's essential to keep exercising, eating the right foods, and following your unique life path no matter what others try to tell you. Right now you'll feel great if you exercise your will as well as your body!

CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

Take special care of your health now, because a rather stressful aspect suggests that you could be more susceptible to issues than usual. Symptoms could appear unexpectedly or be a recurrence of an issue you suffered recently. This is the time to sort it all out for good. Don't delay. Get any problems checked out for your own peace of mind. You won't regret it!

AQUARIUS Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

Whatever you do, don't let stress take a toll on your health. Make sure to eat well and get plenty of sleep. Take some time to relax, too. Working out will help clear your head. Walking in nature will soothe your soul. If you're in good shape, you can do a better job helping others.

PISCES Feb. 19 - March 20

The cosmos could bring a lot of emotion to the surface now. Although you aren't usually the kind of person who overeats when you're stressed, you could succumb now, especially if you feel vulnerable. Try to get to the heart of the issue before you reach for the chips. A detached perspective and an easier schedule might help you feel better physically and mentally.

FLOATS from Cover

snapdragon are supposed to be representative of the Mick Jagger period. Then it was okay - now we're in the '60s. That was a pretty good time for music. And then it kept growing. That's when we're like, 'You know what? Let's do this piece of Americana," he said.

It takes 13 months of work, from conceptualization to a fully built float, to bring each year's dream to reality. After a theme is decided on, a designer comes in to draw sketches of the final designs, which are then put to a vote. When the winning design is finalized, months are spent brainstorming what exactly the float will look like, what materials will be needed and how the float will be assembled. In March, after the mechanics of the design are ironed out, hundreds of volunteers from Disney, local Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, and local businesses and schools come to put together frames and paint the body to ensure it looks as the designers intended. When the float has been painted (with places for flower vials marked out) the decorating begins. Between 20 and 30 people work decorating around the clock between Dec. 26 and 31. This year, 132 total volunteers worked on different pieces of the float. Al Brooks Rose Bowl Tours sends buses of volunteers to assist, along with donations for next year's float. Just before New Year's Eve, volunteers from Road Scholars will come to where the float rests under the 210 overpass to secure over 51,000 flowers to the VW bus

-35,000 of them roses.

Pat Wiedenbeck, who has been with the Association for 18 years, said she is delighted to see the float in its final stages.

"When you're able to put on the final details, that's when the float comes alive. Right now you know it's a bus," she said adding that after adding the floral details, "When you put 'school bus' across the top and the lights, and all the bits and pieces, that's when it comes alive. That's when you see the soul of the designer."

The team has won awards for its floats 15 years in a row. It's Wiedenbeck's hope that the La Cañada team will take home a banner for one of the categories for this year's elaborate design for which it is newly eligible: Queen of the Roses, Isabella Coleman for Integration of Engineering, Float Building Techniques and Decoration, Golden State (for the California music themes) and lastly, the Leschmann Award, the top award for non-commercial floats.

For Wiedenbeck the importance lies in flexing her planning skills and working with so many community members.

"It's a community effort. It's an out-of-community effort," she said of local and outside of area volunteers. "Finding a way to make it all work - that's the challenge."

For Koeppen, it's about recruiting kids from the La Cañada community who no longer have access to shop classes or community spaces in which to learn and grow. Building floats teaches kids and adults welding, construction and design skills they can use. He calls this philosophy of pushing the boundaries with engineering and skilled trades DREAM: Design-Research-Engineering-Art-Maker.

"The community floats represent creativity and adventure and pushing the boundaries. The floats to me are the dreams of the community coming together," he said.

The La Cañada Flintridge Tournament of Roses Association is accepting on its website GoFundMe donations for next year's float. Donors can also visit https://www. gofundme.com/f/wd478-build-adream.

Design ideas for the 2025 float can be submitted on the website until Jan. 8, 2024.
